Sustainability

Sustainability is an important issue in today's world and the Hotel «Krone» in Churwalden has placed these considerations at the heart of its design. One of the most important elements is the use of district heating from Churwalden, which is both environmentally friendly and economical. By using this form of energy, we are helping to reduce CO2 emissions while supporting the local economy.

Another important element is the use of sustainable care products in the hotel rooms. We make sure that the products are biodegradable and free from harmful chemicals. This way we can ensure that both our guests and the environment are protected.

Furthermore, for the sake of the environment, we only change the bed linen every third day. At the request of our guests, we will of course change them less often or more often. It is equally important for us to work with regional suppliers in order to promote domestic added value. We source as many of our products as possible from the region to support the local economy while reducing the environmental impact of transport.

All these considerations show that the Hotel «Krone» meets today's zeitgeist of social and ecological aspects. We are aware that we have a responsibility to make environmentally friendly and sustainable choices and we strive to constantly meet these standards.
